Mabel Glenn Defeated Owen Golden Six Lengths.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
CLIFTON RACE TRACK, Nov. 21.—Another gloomy day and a heavy track were the greets at Clifton, but the regulars were here in good numbers, making the crowd quite a respectable one.

The racing began with a dash of six and one-half furlongs. Lemone H. was the favorite, but could not navigate in the mud and finished unplaced. The speedy but erratic Mabel Glenn, ridden by Josh Jones and starting at 5 to 1, won easily.

Factor lent the other horses waiting at the post for him fully ten minutes in the second race, and when he arrived he delayed the start further by refusing to join the others.

Finally the flag fell and he, getting a good position, ran second until reaching the stone wall where he came away and won, paying $195.70 in the mutuels.

Only one straight ticket was sold on him, and in the books he started at 20 to 1, though at one time 50 to 1 could have been obtained against him.

Young Charles Giblin's Death Sentence Commuted by Gov. Hill.

Life Imprisonment for the Slayer of Madeline Goetz.

End of a Long and Torturing Suspense to the Condemned.

An "Evening World" Reporter Takes the News to Giblin in the Tombs.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Gov. Hill has commuted the sentence of Charles Giblin to imprisonment for life.

The memorandum reads: After a careful consideration of the evidence given upon the trial and the additional evidence produced before the referee on this application for Executive Pardon, I am convinced that there is too much doubt about some features of this case to warrant the infliction of the death penalty. The sentence of death is therefore commuted to imprisonment for life.

When the news was received at THE EVENING WORLD office a reporter rushed at once to the Tombs to carry the news to the condemned man. Joe Moss, of Howe & Hummel's office, was going in at the time, but had received no information of the Governor's action.

THE EVENING WORLD man was the first to carry the news to Giblin.

"The Governor has commuted your sentence to imprisonment for life," said THE EVENING WORLD man.

Giblin remained perfectly calm. He showed scarcely any emotion, save a moisture of the eyes.

"I am very glad," he said, "I am very glad. I have no more to say to you. I hope this is only a beginning of the good things to come."

When he was taken to his cell, he was accompanied by a guard. He was taken to his cell, he was accompanied by a guard.

Three times sentence to be executed, he has three times seen the death place over him and now been released from the very jaws of death.

On Feb. 13, 1888, Giblin entered the bakery, Valentine Goetz, at 102 Houston street, and bought two pies, tendering a $5 bill in payment.

It was old and dirty, and Mrs. Goetz, of whom Giblin had purchased, became suspicious of his intentions.

Mr. Goetz was called in and refused the bill. Giblin had tried to strangle him.

The two men grappled and fell to the floor. Giblin, who was a strong man, was the victor.

Giblin claimed that before they fell Giblin drew a knife and stabbed Goetz in the back. Giblin was charged with the murder.

Giblin denied that he was a counterfeiter, or that he knew the bill was fraudulent. He was found guilty, and on June 25 was sentenced to be hanged on Aug. 17.

The case was again sentenced to hang on Aug. 23, but on the day before execution the Governor reprieved him for six days and appointed Bernard J. Douras to inquire into the case and report to him.

At his trial, which began June 9, 1888, he put in a plea of self-defense.

On the other hand, it was charged that Giblin was a professional counterfeiter and that his wife had been killed by him.

The Collection of the Money Denounced as a Great Crime.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
BOSTON, Nov. 21.—A reporter went out in search of John L. Sullivan this morning to hear what he had to say about the $13,000-oystermen's strike.

He was met coming down Washington street. "The California Athletic Club know what I offered them," said John, "and that is just what I will do. I will meet the colored fighter at their club-rooms if a purse of $20,000 is hunked up, and that is my final answer."

"I am willing to meet any man they can put against me, but they must carry out the deal about Jackson now, or it will cost them more money when they come to talk it over again."

"What about the chances of Slavin meeting you?"

"It's all the same to me as to which of them is set against me. I have no choice in the matter. All that I am looking at is the amount of money that is given."

"I once said that I would never fight a colored man, but they seem to think that Jackson is a world-beater, and I am anxious to show them just where he belongs."

"Do you think there is any chance of Kilrain being the one chosen to do battle with you?"

"I think it altogether unlikely, but if there is any money behind him he can step into the breach and be the club's candidate. The talk about a ring fight is simply nonsense, for it is plain to every one that a London rule battle is out of the question."

"There is no place in the country where the fight could come off, and since the last battle the authorities will be more severe than ever. I am open to 30 business with the California Club, but it must be on the basis I have already given."

"Then you refuse to go to the Pacific slope unless the purse is $20,000?"

"I will meet any white man for a $10,000 purse, but for the other kind I want the full amount."

COYLE WHIPS SHANNON.

Short but Fierce Prize-Fight in East New York This Morning.

Jack Coyle, of Brooklyn, and Mike Shannon, of New York, met at a resort near East New York this morning to battle for a purse of $200 under Marquis of Queensbury rules.

Coyle was seconded by Jack O'Brien and Andy Farrell. Shannon was seconded by Jack Fay and Billy Dunn. Johnny O'Regan was referee.

"Pop" Gallagher was timekeeper. The fight began at 10 o'clock. Coyle was the victor.

Heavy singeing was done in the second round. Coyle receiving a stinger in the right eye.

Prior to the fight Shannon had a bad cold. Coyle managed to recover in time, and faced Shannon. One of the spectators attempted to interfere, but was knocked down by one of Coyle's seconds.

Coyle's victory was imminent, but fear of alarming the police kept him quiet.

Shannon landed on Coyle's eye and nose, but Coyle shook out his right hand and catching Shannon on the jaw put him to sleep. He did not respond to the call of time and the fight was awarded to Coyle.

CHOP AWAY TILL YOU REACH ALL THE BOODLERS AND CORRUPTIONISTS.

THE COMMISSIONER OF ACCOUNTS FROM ABOUT 10.45 TO 11.45, WHEN HE WAS ASKED TO BE EXCUSED, AS HE MUST GO TO HIS HOUSE OR OFFICE TO SIGN CERTAIN BOOKS DEMANDS BY THE CORPORATION COUNCIL.

TIM SHEA RECALLED.
Timothy Shea was recalled at his own request, and declared that Houseman might not be a liar, but he had done great violence to the truth, and then he recalled that he had a strange, a violent struggle with Houseman at a Sixty-second place Mr. Shea, who was a member of the office of Commissioner of Accounts at that time.

THE ASSOCIATION WAS ORGANIZED for the purpose of influencing legislation. The same thing has been tried before, but now, as then, Mr. Shea had refused to take a hand in the scheme.

As to that $13,000 Mr. Shea declared that everybody along the river knew what the money was used for, and it wasn't for counsel fees, said Mr. Shea with much feeling.

FOURTH RETREAT.
William Foster interviewed him and asked that he make a statement. Then he "crawled," retracting his hot assertion on the stand yesterday, and said that it was a lie. It wasn't so, and he wanted to say so. Mr. Shea might be mistaken, but not a liar.

Then Foster thought the oysterman, including himself, had been skinned on the $13,000 business. We got a report on that, and the declaration by Cowan, of Princeton, of Shea, of Albany, and Foster, of Brooklyn, and Tim Shea nodded his head as Mr. Foster departed.

HAD TO PAY $644.
Joseph Ellsworth, a little old man with a white beard, said emphatically that he was $644 in the $13,000 racket. He opposed the election of O'Byrne at $13,000 counsel fee, because he thought the money was being paid for nothing.

"Why did you pay your share of the $13,000, then?" asked Mr. Clark.

"I was told that if I didn't pay my share of the $13,000, I wouldn't be permitted to exist among my neighbors," replied Mr. Ellsworth, significantly.

WILL THEY STRIKE?

The possibility of a strike of the freight handlers of the New York Central Railroad is an exciting topic in railroad circles to-day.

A statement of the grievances of the trainmen and engineers has been printed in THE EVENING WORLD, with the announcement that terms were to be offered them by the officials of the company this morning.

The Freight Handlers' Committee and the Executive Committee of the railroad company went into session shortly after 10 o'clock this morning in the office of General Superintendent John M. Johnston.

The "Employees' Committee" represents the disaffected freightmen, engineers and trainmen, who claim that they are being treated in a most unjust manner.

Several minor grievances of the freight handlers were also discussed at length.

The men claim that the burling way in which trains are handled at the Albany freight depot is the cause of much extra and unnecessary labor and hardship, which could all be avoided if these trains could be managed better.

They say the officials could just as well prepare more perfect schedule, and they threaten to make trouble for the company unless it does something to redress their grievances.

The company has adopted a pacific attitude and will resort to diplomacy and arbitration in order to avoid the threatened strike.

I expect that the meeting this morning will adjust the matters to please both sides, said Mr. Johnston.

We should daily consider the alleged grievances of the men and shall do our best to remedy them, and we will make any reasonable concession.

President Depew sat in his office as unruffled as a summer morning over the impending trouble with his employees. Said he: "Oh, I think to-day's conference will settle all these matters. I don't think there will be any strike."
